The content published on the Baba Ajmeri website is provided for general informational, spiritual, and astrological purposes. Our services are based on traditional Vedic Astrology and spiritual practices and are offered according to the information and circumstances shared by each individual.

Astrology and spiritual guidance are matters of personal belief and interpretation. They should not be understood as a certain prediction of what will happen in the future. No result can be promised, predicted with absolute certainty, or guaranteed. We sincerely perform the services requested from us and make every reasonable effort within the scope of our practice, but outcomes can differ from person to person.

Any decision you make after receiving our guidance remains your own responsibility. Our services should not replace a qualified doctor, lawyer, financial adviser, counsellor, or other professional where specialist advice is required.

Baba Ajmeri does not claim to control another person's thoughts, feelings, choices, health, legal decisions, or future actions. Any references to love, marriage, relationships, health, property, divorce, or other matters should be understood as guidance rather than a promise of a particular outcome.

By accessing this website or choosing to use our services, you acknowledge and understand the nature and limitations of spiritual and astrological guidance.
